Anti-Piracy Lobby Defeats European Democracy

Written by Ernesto on November 29, 2008

An amendment designed to protect Internet users from the anti-piracy lobby has been rejected by President Sarkozy of the European Council. The rejection goes against the will of the European Parliament, where 88% of the members already voted in favor of the amendment, which was originally destined to protect file-sharers from Internet disconnection under the '3 strikes' framework.

Huge lobbying effort

Conclusion: what's next?

300000 euros d'amende et 3 ans de prison pour les pirates.

Idem pour toute personne éditant un logiciel destiné à la mise à disposition du public non
